"We had lately some difficulties with the Americans as to the interpretation of a treaty dealing with our canal navigation, and we found then that it was necessary in the interests of our country to push on our canal work with all the despatch possible. (Applanese.) It thought the work should be pushed forward and I have the support in that opinion of every member of the Cabinet. (Hear, beat) Ladies and gentlemen. I may tell you that by the opening of navigation in 1934 hope that Canded will have a water way of her own, superior to anything on the continent of America from Lake Superior to the sea. (Loud
